

What's a Niglo?

Django Reinhardt's favourite food was niglos
(That's n i g l o and s makes more than one of those).
Catch them in the autumn when they're nice and fat,
ready to hibernate all cosy curled like a cat.
It takes a good dog to sniff one out.
Chase them in the sack now.

What's a niglo?

A strange little rodent with a prickly hide
living under the hedge, coming out at night.
You kill em and gut em
and stuff em with rosemary, garlic and thyme.
You sew it back up-its gonna be divine.

Roll them in clay til they're football size.
Throw another log on the campfire.
Cook them in the coals til they're black and done.
The spikes will come off when you break them open.
'Mmmm' we're gonna eat a prickly one.
'Oooh' a cutsie little spikey one.
There's none left for the dogs.
They'll have to go without.
Break another open!

Whats a Niglo?

A strange little rodent with a prickly hide
living under the hedge, coming out at night.
Its probably sweet cooked in onions and wine.
Do them like an olive in a 10% brine.
